Session 2: Writing in Social Research: Title, Abstract, and Conclusion

This workshop will engage with a few select aspects of research writing that often seem insignificant, manageable or the most uncomplicated components. The workshop will offer a hands-on experience by inviting participants to reflect critically and write a title, abstract, keywords, conclusion, and annotated bibliography. The writing exercise aims to engage researchers to cogently organize their research ideas and prepare the first draft, conveying key arguments, findings, and significance of their tentative research topic vis-a-vis contemplating the challenges they confront while preparing the draft.
