Session 1: Methodological and Theoretical Aspects of Drafting a Research Paper

What is the role of theory and methodology in research? What is the relationship between the two? The talk will address the relationship between theory and research by way of engaging within the two methodological paradigms– quantitative and qualitative. The two paradigms remain crucial as they provide clues to how theories are used along with theorization, theory to data in the case of quantitative, and data to theory in qualitative research. As such, the differences between the two are pivotal in any research endeavor and determine research ideas, objectives, and outcomes. The talk will end with a personal reflection on doing research in social science.
